Hi Joanne! Great first draft of the website. I really love the use of Didot and different size images. Going forward I would love to see some more playful elements (breaking the grid with pictures, more interesting uses of typography.) I've added some examples below of how Vogue uses type to enhance the editorial feel. I think the message and structure of the website is really clear and I am excited to see how it translates to HTML.